

Dr. Patty Ann's Relationship Commitment Quiz:

Common symptoms of lack of commitment are easy to spot and you can ask yourself the following questions to gauge where you are right now:

1. Are you and your partner accusing each other of not being committed to your relationship?
 Yes No
2. Are either of you not willing to work on areas of your relationship that are causing you pain?
 Yes No
3. Do you avoid spending time with each other and sometimes make plans to avoid being around one another?
 Yes No
4. Have either of you lost the desire or understanding to support each other's hopes, goals and dreams?
 Yes No
5. Do you avoid intimacy at all costs?
 Yes No

If you've answered yes to any of these questions and they caused you to step back and re-evaluate the commitment in your relationship, you are in the right place. You are not alone. Commitment issues are a common low-point that people experience in relationships. There's a way to get past this and get back on track.

While it's clear your relationship is suffering the pain and doubt of a lack of commitment by either yourself or partner you can regain the love and trust you once felt. I want to help and I strongly encourage you to try my Relationship Toolbox™. This system will empower you to enhance the commitment you have to yourself and your relationship and in turn your partnership will grow and flourish.

To re-commit to your relationship invest in Dr. Patty Ann's Relationship Toolbox™ today or for even faster results consider working directly with Dr. Patty Ann in one of her exclusive relationship programs.